Congratulations & Good Luck, Class of 1998!

Miss V. continually tells us that 'great Literature shapes who we are". Together, during the last twelve years, we have progressed from our days of "Silent Reading" with The Babysitters Club and Handy Boys, to all nighters of Shakespeare and Joyce. We have toured the country with William heast-Heat Moon, journeyed to awareness with scout and Jem, and -Suffered the slings and arrows of Outrageous fortune with Hamlet. now, as we reflect upon the stories that have both shaped our minds and contributed to the people we have become, we hope that you will look back upon this yearbook as your favorite and most memorable reminder of your years spent here at NHS. We wish you the best of luck and many good times to come! Lynsey and Weghan

Fifteen Years Into

The Year is 2013, and the members of the NHS

Last Saturday evening, as former Class President Kelly Ennis was returning home from a meeting to plan the fifteenth reunion for the Norwell High School Class of 1998, tragedy struck. Shortly after nine o'clock, at the intersection of Turner Ave. and J.R. Harty Drive, her brand new Mercedes was struck from the side by a log truck driven by logger Dave Porcello. Luckily, neither suffered any serious injury. However, when the bus tipped ove spilling logs all over the street, bus driver Nick Mantia was unable to stop his bus from hitting the logs and spinning onto the front yard of Andria Rampino. Hearing the horrible crash, she ran to the phone to call 911. As luck wou have it, marathoner Kate Finkenstaedt was running by, and thanks to the CPR training she had learned in high schofrom Ms. Tupper, she was able to aid the injured until paramedics Kate Tower, Bill Ford, and John Meddaug arrived at the scene. Unfortunately, however, firefighters Kristin Litchfield and Brian Delaney were too busy puttir out a fire at a factory owned by beanie baby manufacturer Patricia Stempleski to arrive at the crash site. Therefore call-firemen Dan McGloin and Justin Kirby were summoned away from their families in order to put out the smok created from the accident.

As policeman Mike Galvin interviewed bus survivors Kelly Kilcoyne and Abby McCarthy, fellow bus material Kelly Snell was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance driven by Josh Pilalas. Upon entering the hospital, she was rushed immediately into the new emergency care wing, built by contractors Rich Cheverie and Merrill Comeau. The wing was funded by heiress Amanda Bowen. There, doctor Chris Truesdell and nurse Jenn LaCroix worked diligently to stop the internal bleeding of their patient. With the help of organ specialist Tom Shea, their efforts were successful and the patient was taken to the recovery room. Upon waking up the next morning, the dazed patient looked across the hall to find Matt Finlayson's camera crew video taping as Janmarie O'Donnell gave birth to septuplet Red Cross volunteer Erin Gibbons along with Sara Gifford, president of the NFL Players' Wives Association, were running a telethon on the local access TV station, managed by Greg Laban, to raise funds for the family of the ne septuplets. Guests on the all-night telethon included Ryan Sullivan, who not only played his guitar but read poets as well, and Leith MacDonald, who painted a picture of lucky audience member Leigh DiRenzo. Finance banks Nick Henderson presented a check for $15,000 to the ecstatic mother in her hospital room.

Elsewhere in the hospital, hockey player Tim King was treated by physical therapists Erica Kilduff ar Andrea Barber for a broken leg. Due to the extreme pain, he was admitted to the hospital for observation. Whi lying in his room, he turned on the television and began watching a variety show hosted by the dynamic duo of Roby Foulsham and Kristin Goodwin. That night, their guests were trumpeter Scott Webber, gymnast Dayna Mazzoli and the Grammy Award winning singer Liz Trozzi. After a beautiful rendition of "Amazing Grace" by the a capel singer, news anchorman Ian Sutherland broke in on the program to announce the late breaking news that angi McDonald's employee Jason Petitti had locked himself and three hostages inside the local McDonald's upset that had not received a promotion in his twenty-five year tenure. Among the hostages was nutritionist Natasha Kelly, wh was visiting the restaurant to scold manager Fred Bunker for the excessively large fat content of the so-called "lo fat veggie burger". In an attempt to break up the tension, FBI agents Pat Kelley and Courtenay Webster were calle to the scene to attempt a peaceful negotiation. After a ten hour standoff, the conflict ended when another of the hostages, artist Jess Pithie, struck the disgruntled man on the head with a fry-alator, knocking him unconscious. He was quickly arrested and taken to the mental ward of the hospital to be evaluated by psychologist Ashley Donoghus

Also at the hospital that night, Assistant District Attorney Sarah Flannery was being treated for a miconcussion suffered that day in court. In a high profile court case involving Calvin Klein models Matt Sheehan ar Aron Cingolani, the Assistant D.A. was prosecuting Amanda Beaudette, manufacturer of Blonde Beauty hair dyon the grounds that her product caused the prized blonde locks of the models to turn to an irreversible putrid green color Mayhem in the courtroom erupted when defense attorney Dave Gordon and the lead prosecute Erika Gully-Santiago began trash talking each others hair color. That is when a bottle of the had ye was thrown, hitting the Assistant D.A. in the head. By orders of judge Lynsey Fitzgerald, bot the prosecutor and the defense attorney were reprimanded by bailiff Joel Milliken and the trial was postponed until the following day.

The Future . . .

Class of '98 are scattered across the United States...

The mayhem in the courtroom became the buzz in Hollywood, where E! News correspondent Shannon Williams interviewed Calvin Klein clothing executive Lisa Allen to get her view on the catastrophe caused by the hair dye. She stated that through extensive research done by computer analysts Pete Lukow and Joe DeLuca, sales of the popular line of clothing have not suffered as the teenage population has warmly accepted Brian Reardon and Bobby Foye as the replacement models. She also stated that hopefully through a painless hair replacement operation performed by hair specialist Matt Fogarty, the scarred models would be able to return to work in the near future. Also featured on E! that night was a new edition of Talk Soup, hosted by Ian Price. That episode featured a segment from the Oprah Winfrey Show in which women's rights activist Meghan O'Connor and Amnesty International spokeswoman Elisabeth Ryan praised the efforts of Peace Corps member Kim Hogan for her heroic action against child abuse in the African Congo. She was presented with a medal of valor from Senator Brian Doherty. Also featured on that episode was the "clip of the week" compliments of the Jerry Springer Show. The episode featured angry audience member Kyrle Holland scolding guests Megan Spearin and Michelle Harding for their excessive body piercings and eccentric hair tones. The hostile audience member sprung from his seat, but fortunately stage manager Doug Martin restrained the man before he could reach the stage.

As well, the courtroom ordeal became the brunt of the on-going joke told by comedian Matt Mangum, host of that night's Academy Awards. In the most talked about category of the night, presenter Sarah Buck, acclaimed actress of international films, presented the Oscar for Best Actress in a Dramatic Feature Film to Emilee Dennis. Her heart wrenching portrayal of Rose, in Jon Alabiso's remake of the earlier classic Titanic, edged out Claire Gerety-Mott's role as an American in Europe. Also picking up an award that night was Bruce Bryan for his inspiring performance based upon the life of NFL coach Steve O'Neill. The one setback of the night came when angry Rockettes Lisa Toth and Jenn Hasham staged a protest outside the auditorium, upset that their act had been bumped by show organizer Mike Brennan for a ballet duet performed by Christine Kelliher and Tessa Sestina.

Following the awards ceremony, CFO, Chris Zona, hosted a post-Oscar party at Jen Ewart's new Hollywood restaurant $Shot\ Put$. Also spotted was $f Andrew\ Chin$, the newest member of the British pop group, Oasis. Tabloid reporter Pam Denayer reported in her syndicated column the next day, that music executive Dave Campbell also made a brief appearance at the party, yet he spent most of his time chatting with the bartender, Suzanne McLaughlin. Despite reports that Olympic gold medal equestrian Amanda Reed was forced to leave the party due to a severe case of food poisoning suffered after she ate a tainted potato from Tara Acton's farm, FDA spokeswoman Katie Gibbons called the allegation unprecedented as no other party-goer suffered such a reaction. Adam Robertson, moonlighting as maitre'd of the party, returned to his day job early the next morning as a lawn care specialist at Dodgers Stadium. While mowing the outfield, he chatted with Dodger outfielder Steve Roffo and hot dog vender, Autumn Keene. That night, just as Liz Weber began her rendition of the National Anthem, a mild earthquake struck the region. Seismologist Jen Rosebach evaluated the quake as a 4.5 on the Richter scale. Due to some damage, head umpire Jesse Knudsen was forced to postpone the game so that tree and grounds specialist Frank Spring could repair the damaged infield. While leaving the stadium, Dodger fan Erica Lawford generously agreed to give skateboarder Michelle Galvin a ride to the airport so that she could return home to Norwell. While on the plane piloted by Melissa Conway, the skateboarder talked with stewardesses Katrina Bois and Alexandra Williams. Also returning to the Boston area on hat flight was the well known writer Lori Dunford, author of The Many Uses of Elmer's Glue. Despite receiving harsh criticism from New York Times critic Beth Sharkin, she was returning to attend a book signing at the bookstore owned by Amanda Mayhew.

As the plane descended over Cape Cod Bay, a large island fortress could be viewed. The lone inhabitant of the island was Brooks Buitta, who after discovering a rare earth metal at the age of twenty-four, was able to retire to his small island and lead his ideal life of idleness. His sole source of communication with the outside world was when surfers Mark Bizzozero and Dan Anderson bassed by and gave a nod. Also lost somewhere in the Atlantic were Alex Ayers and Ken Camerota as the former Class President, Kelly Ennis, was unable to locate the two men to send hem invitations for the NHS Class of 1998 reunion.

The anxiously awaited National Honor Society Induction, held on May 7, 1997, was a night of "great expectations". The sixteen new members, chosen on merits of Scholarship, Character, Leadership and Service, were ushered into the auditorium to hear congratulations from NHS advisor, Mrs. Rosenberg, and a speech presented by President Mike Brosnahan. Mr. Marshman presented awards, thus graciously ending the evening.

Prom 1997

It was a night of glitter and glam, dancing and laughter, as the N H S Prom kicked off yet another successful night at the Ritter Country Club, on May 9, 1997. The rhythms and beats reverberated throughout the room, as the clinking of soda glasses and tapping of heels resounded, hushing only for the announcement of the King and Queen, Mike Brosnahan and Lisa Allen, and their court, Pam Denayer and Amanda Reed. Indeed, 'twas a splendid evening!

Rock The Quad '97

Despite the brutal heat of the June afternoon, spirits were high as the entire student body enjoyed the first annual Rock the Quad celebration. A summer barbeque lunch was served, entertainment was provided by a slew of student bands, and elementary school rivalries were revived in a rousing game of tug o' war. Not surprisingly, the most popular activity was the "Dunk the Teacher" stand, at which scores of students hurled their best shots in hopes of soaking various good-natured faculty members. The afternoon was topped off by the proud crowning of the first ever Mr. and Miss NHS, the talented freshman Tim Ryan, and his companion, junior Kelly Ennis.

Underclass Awards

An impressive amount of people - including the entire faculty, student body, and scores of proud parents - gathered in the NHS auditorium on June 13, for the annual presentation of underclass awards. Dozens of awards were handed out for every aspect of the curriculum - everything from achievement in English to dedication in health, from perfect attendance to the fastest chem boat, as well as special Principal's awards going to those outstanding students with recognition in multiple areas. All honors were well deserved, and the afternoon served as just another reminder of some of the exceptional individuals Norwell has fostered.

Spirit Week

As each day of the festive week passed, students showed their school spirit by arriving decked out in their pajamas, togas, blue and gold apparel, and the ever-popular random attire. Although each class worked diligently on their respective Homecoming walls, based on the theme of time periods, the undisputed victor was the seniors, whose 'future' wall was impressively complemented by a multitude of white balloons that were dispersed across the gym at the conclusion of the dance. The controversial ruling that resulted in a tie between the seniors and the juniors was a surprise to all. The week was capped off by perfect weather for the win in the Homecoming game against South Boston and a successful dance.

Homecoming

Students, parents, faculty and alumnibraving the freezing cold October weather, filled the NHS football stands, cheering the undefeated Clippers to a 27-0 victory over South Boston. At half-time, the homecoming court of freshman, John Bizzozero and Lydia Halloran, sophomores, Dan McNamara and Kelly Barry, Juniors Tom Slavin and Noelle Anderson, and seniors, Matt Mangum, Matt Fogarty, Ian Sutherland, Erica Kilduff, Kate Finkenstaedt and Shannon Williams, were paraded around the field in convertibles. Later that evening, the students danced the night away, surrounded by the efforts of all four classes' creations of the time periods: future, modern, medieval and ancient. The seniors and juniors triumphed with their future and medieval tarps. Kate Finkenstaedt and Matt Fogarty were crowned the royals of the night and shared the spotlight dance.

Thanksgiving

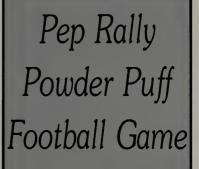

This year's Thanksgiving Day festivities started with a bang as the entire student body gathered in the gym for a boisterous and humorous pep rally which was highlighted by a skit featuring Mr. Marshman and the "Hanover Cheerleaders". Later in the day, at the annual Powder Puff game, the senior girls demolished the junior girls by a score of 15-5. ('Nuff Said!) On Thanksgiving day, the Clippers put forth a strong effort against rivals Hanover, but the team fell in a heartbreaking loss, 18-17. The Thanksgiving week activities provided fun for all involved.

The team was instructed by the excellent coaching of Ms. Mazzola.

WINTER

This year's boys' basketball team capped off a great league season by earning a berth in the state tournament. The Clippers travelled to Old Rochester High School in the opening round to play the sharp shooting ORR Bulldogs. Although a valiant effort was given by all, the Clippers fell in a tight game with a score of 64-56. Leading the way for the Clippers was the all-around impressive play of sophomore forward, Dan McNamara, who finished the game with 16 points. As well, junior point guard Nick Hajjar played spectacular defense and scored 15 points. Other key players in the game were senior forward, Ian Sutherland, who finished with 10 points, and junior Jay Edwards who contributed 11 points. Despite the loss, this was one of the finest teams in recent history. Coach Willis added that, "this was the hardest working group of guys I've ever coached.'

The Norwell Girls' basketball team was a surprise to the league this year as they captured the league title. As a result, the Lady Clippers were allotted a home tournament game. In the opening round, the seventh-seeded Clippers lost in a tough fought game to tenth-seeded Medfied, 69-5. Despite the loss, the Clippers were led offensively by freshman Jessie Weber who led all scorers with 20 points. Guards Lynse Fitzgerald and Briana Rinchiuso played solid defense and distributed the ball well, and forwards Meghan O'Connor and Maeve Barao played tough under the boards. It was a stellar season for the six seniors and seven returning underclassmen.

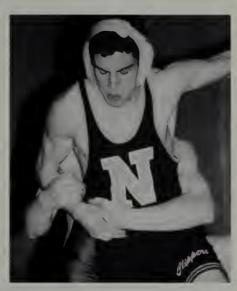

For the first time in school history, the Norwell hockey team qualified for the state tournament as they finished the regular season with a record of 11-9. The Clippers faced Martha's Vineyard High School in the first round in a game held at the Gallo Arena in Bourne. Despite an amazing 45-save game from goalie, Tim King, the Clippers lost in a 5-1 match. Tom Slavin scored the lone Norwell goal unassisted. Unfortunately for the Clippers, many key players were out due to injury and could not play. Yet, the young team gained great experience and provided excitement for all.

Diversity Club and Gay-Straight Alliance

Diversity Awareness Club

The Diversity Club works hard to create a tolerant environment here at NHS. Last year the club sponsored their piannual Diversity Day. The club invited a multitude of peakers from diverse cultural, racial, religious and ethnic packgrounds to speak to students. This year the club held "Dance Like No Other" to celebrate the diversity at NHS. Club plans include bringing more speakers to NHS, hosting a cultural potluck and painting a mural entitled the Tolerance Wall.

Gay -Straight Alliance

n its only second year of existence, the GSA continued to row and learn, advised by Dr. Gerety and Ms. Ward. By providing a safe and supportive environment for all students, the GSA worked to increase its own education, as well the awareness of those throughout the high school.

Amnesty International

Under the leadership of president Elisabeth Ryan, vice president Bruce Bryan, secretary Sarai King, treasurer Meghan O'Connor, publicity representatives Lisa Toth and Erika Gully–Santiago, and faculty advisors Mr. Farrow and Mrs. Butler, Amnesty Internationa continued to fight for human rights around the world. By writing letters to free prisoners of conscience all over the world – including China, Kenya, Turkey, and Mexico – the members have taken action against human rights abuses. They wrote more than one hundred holiday cards to let political prisoners everywhere know that they were remembered, and they focused much of their time on educating themselves about the history and culture of Tibet, and, most importantly, how to aid them in achieving freedom fron oppression. Do not think that a small group of people cannot change the world; indeed, it is the only thing that ever has.

Math Team

There was definitely cause for the math team to celebrate with a round of High Pi's this year. After consistently performing at a top-notch level, the proud, self-proclaimed math nerds placed tenth in the Southeastern Massachusetts Mathematics League and advanced to the sectional play-offs. Armed with their pocket protectors and TI-83s, lead by president Meghan O'Connor, vice president Bruce Bryan, and secretary Elisabeth Ryan, and of course Mrs. Giordano, this year's team certainly lived up to their slogan of being Infinitely Radical.

Mock Trial

Beginning the season with the itle of the 1997 Plymouth County champions, the mock trial team vas more than ready to tackle he case of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts vs. Mickey Peers, an involuntary manslaugher case involving a teenager charged with causing the deaths of two people as a result of tampering with a stop sign. With both the prosecution and the defense deserving Dream Team status, helped of course by local awyers and NHS's own legal expert Mr. Farrow, the team was an indisputable success.

Peer Education

With a large and active membership this year, the substance free group continued to work closely witl Norwell fifth and seventh graders, as well as with the freshman in the successful Project School Family program. Led this year by Dr. Gerety and Mr. Webber, the group undertook a campaign to cut dowr on drinking and driving. They distributed plaid ribbons throughout the school to raise awareness about the serious problem of drinking and driving, and they created a wall in the spine on which students could sign their name, pledging their support to help end this widespread problem.

Rousing political debate is the main activity of the newly-founded Junior State of America. Presidents Steve Mott and Alex Gordon led the club to their best debates ever, covering topics from the President's personal life to the rights of students to funding for space exploration. Regional level conferences in the fall and spring were a big hit and several members held regional offices with the brand new Northeastern State, encompassing New England and New York.
